Northwest Missouri State University is a moderately selective, learner-centered regional university offering a focused range of undergraduate and graduate programs. Historically, the University serves nineteen northwest Missouri counties, emphasizing programs relating to agriculture, business, and education.

In its undergraduate programs, Northwest is committed to providing students with a strong general education core preparing them for a world of constant change. The University is a national leader in applying information technology to improve learning processes and in promoting continuous quality improvement to enhance performance in all of its activities. As a leader and initiator of cooperative efforts within its region, Northwest seeks to expand and improve access to learning and to promote applied research designed to address regional and state issues.
