Southeast Missouri State University is a multi-purpose regional institution of higher education that derives its authority from the people of Missouri through the Missouri State Legislature. While serving in the interest of the nation and the state of Missouri, the University maintains a strong commitment to the diverse twenty-five counties of the rural, urban, and suburban areas of southeast Missouri. As a multi-purpose institution, the University achieves its educational goals through the offering of instructional programs and other learning experiences at the certificate, associate, baccalaureate, master’s and specialist levels.

Recognizing its responsibility for the advancement and transmission of knowledge and the preparation of leaders in all segments of society, the university provides a wide range of programs that address the intellectual, professional, personal, social, and cultural needs of students. The moderately selective admission process seeks to identify fully qualified high schools graduates and qualified nontraditional students. A few students from among nearby regional high school graduates who do not reside in a community college district are offered an opportunity to attend in the summer to allow them to demonstrate the capacity for university-level learning and to seek full admission. The university ensures equal access to its educational programs and services without regard to race, creed, age, sex, or national origin.
