Educating a Diverse Nation: Lessons from Minority Serving Institutions

Marybeth Gasman
University of Pennsylvania
Inclusive institutions assume success on the part of students rather than seeing students from a deficit perspective.
Inclusive institutions allow students to bring their full identity to classrooms & co-curricular spaces and capitalize on all aspects of a student’s identity.
Inclusive institutions provide students the opportunity to participate in culturally relevant assignments and activities that speak to the issues in the communities from which they come.
Inclusive institutions encourage students to live for something larger than themselves.
Inclusive institutions encourage student collaboration over competition & independence.
Lesson 6

Inclusive institutions provide students with peer mentors and peer mentoring opportunities across the curriculum.
